“Kids love them!

The kids gravitate to those stations immediately...They’re easy for the kids to use; they don’t need a lot of instruction, and the kids can do it independently.”

“Especially for the very young ones, it’s a good introduction for what they’re going to encounter in school. Like, how to use a keyboard, how the mouse works, and how the mouse interacts with what they're seeing on the computer screen.”

“One of the important aspects we see for the Early Literacy Station is the fact that they’re not connected to the internet. This way we can assure the parents and we can assure ourselves that they aren’t going anywhere we wouldn’t want them going to or that is not appropriate for them.”
